OFFICERS OF STATE GUARD

To Meet and Discuss Means of Improving Service.

Each Company Allowed one Representative With Expenses Paid by the State.

Letters have been sent out by Adjutant General Lawrence to all the companies of the State Guard giving notice of a meeting to be held at Frankfort February 5th and 6th, to be attended by a representative of each company. The local company will be represented by Capt. DeWeese, who will bring back much information which will be beneficial to the individual members, and to the organization, already one of the best in the State. The following subjects have been indicated as suitable topics for consideration:

Care and preservation of State and Government property. Acquisition of property for shooting galleries or target ranges and for their construction, equipment, and maintenance. Physical examination of officers and men of the Guard, as is now required by the War Department. Physical and mental examination of officers of the Guard. Compiling new Military Code for the government of the guard. Suitable armories for various organizations of the guard, and numerous other matters that may be brought before the meeting.

The following representation will be allowed: Brigade Commander and Chief of Staff, Regimental Commanders, Lieutenant Colonel of each regiment, Battalion Commanders, Major Surgeon or Asst. Surgeon of Medical Department of each regiment, Regimental Adjutant of each regiment, Regimental Quartermaster of each regiment, Regimental Commissary of each regiment, Inspector of Small Arms Practice, Company Commanders or one Company officer.

Transportation and board will be provided by the State, but all other expenses must be provided by the representatives.

Woodward-Mitchell Nuptials. The Owensboro Inquirer reports the marriage of Miss Gussie Woodward to Z. Wilbur Mitchell both of Beaver Dam, Ky., as follows:

Sunday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Howard, fifth street, Miss Gussie Woodward and Mr. Z. Wilbur Mitchell, of Beaver Dam, Ky., were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. D. Nowlin of the Third Baptist church. The home was tastefully decorated in ferns and palms. The bride was attired in white net over silk. Miss Myrtie Howard acted as maid of honor and Mr. M. D. Maddox, of Beaver Dam, as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Dena May Woodward, a sister of the bride.

Mrs. Mitchell is the daughter of C. L. Woodward, of Beaver Dam, and is quite a favorite with everyone.

The wedding was a quiet one, only a very few being present. The bride and groom left immediately after dinner, which was served at the Budd house, for the bridal party.

John M. Craig Dies of Typhoid Fever

John McHenry Craig died of typhoid fever at 5:40 o'clock last Sunday afternoon at the Jewish Hospital in Louisville, after an illness extending over a period of two weeks. Mr. Craig complained of being ill two weeks ago, and his condition became so serious that several days later he was removed to the Jewish Hospital. Gradually growing worse, his friends and relatives began to feel much apprehension.

Sunday morning he lapsed into unconsciousness and all hopes for recovery were abandoned.

Craig was thirty-eight years old and was born and reared in Daviss county, where his father, Robert Craig, is a prominent farmer. Mr. Craig was a book-keeper in the employ of the Third National Bank of Louisville, and leaves a wife and child, besides whom he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig, and several brothers and sisters. They are Prof. Hardin Craig, of Princeton University; Prof. William Craig, principal of a high school at Cripple Creek, Colo.; Mrs. Hunter Bell, Owensboro; Mrs. Larkin Griffin, Hartford; Miss Agnes Craig and Miss Catherine Craig, Owensboro. The remains were taken to Owensboro for interment.

Mr. Craig was well known here, having attended Hartford College and later visited friends here quite frequently. His many friends very much regret to learn of his untimely death.

LITTLE GIRL'S PITIFUL CONDITION.

Death Claims Mother, Then Father and Months of Brooding Impairs Mind.

Verna Wright, a little twelve-year-old girl, was tried before a jury in Judge Taylor's court Wednesday for lunacy and was found to be of unsound mind and committed to the Hopkinsville asylum.

This is a most pitiful case. About a year ago the unfortunate little girl's mother sickened and died leaving her as the oldest of four children. The mother's death caused the daughter deep sorrow and she seemed ever afterward to be downcast and heart-broken but bore up until last December her father died. This was more than the little girl could bear. She refused to be comforted and in a few days it was noticed that her mind was becoming impaired. She grew worse rapidly and on several occasions attempted to end her life once, and probably more by drowning. She has continued in this condition since about the first of January. It was decided by relatives to have an inquest held which resulted as above stated.

The girl's parents formerly lived near Fordsville and relatives now live there and are among the county's best people as were her parents.

Death of James Harvey Condit.

James Harvey Condit, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Hartford, died at his home last Friday at noon. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Saturday at 1 p.m., by Revs. J. A. Lewis and R. D. Bennett, after which interment took place at Oakwood cemetery. Mr. Condit leaves no immediate family, but is survived by a twin brother, Mr. Luke Condit, of Hartford, and another brother, Hon. W. F. Condit, and a sister, Mrs. W. A. Taylor, both of Matanzas. No better citizen ever lived in Hartford than Harve Condit, and he will be greatly and sadly missed from our midst.

Hayes-Pirtle.

Mr. Frank Hayes, of Dena, Indiana, and Miss Viola Pirtle were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. F. W. Pirtle, near town, yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. A. Lewis pronounced the ceremony. The happy couple left at once for Decatur, Ill., where they will spend a few days, and then go to Los Angeles, California, to make their future home.

Mr. Hayes is a prominent real estate dealer, while Miss Pirtle is one of the most popular and accomplished young ladies of Ohio county. She is a sister of our fellow townsmen, Dr. J. R. Pirtle. The REPUBLICAN wishes them a happy and prosperous career in their far away home.

HARGIS DESERTED BY OLD FRIENDS.

Can Beckham Stick to Him Against Overwhelming Public Sentiment?

The Beattyville Enterprise, a weekly newspaper, published in an adjoining county to Breathitt, the home of ex-Judge Hargis, sizes up the situation there and the recently attempted farce trial by his honor, Judge Carnes, as follows: Hargis is in his prime, in the full strength of a vigorous manhood. Now, to crown his troubles, John Smith has confessed, and the news comes that John Abner will take the stand against him and the Court of Appeals stops the Carnes trial.

The question is, how long can Hargis hold out? This is a battle royal. The untamed and the hitherto untamable leader of hosts is at bay. He cannot fly, for flight would be ruin irrevocably. He must stand and fight to the issue. Can he continue to snatch victory from defeat or shall his colors go down to rise no more? We shall see. Time will tell. The battle is interesting. The stakes are high.

What of Judge Carnes? Will he hold on? Will he successfully withstand the darts that are being hurled at him? or will he resign? He should resign. When a Judge loses control of his court and demonstrates his inability to cope with the situation he should step down and let some man in who can rule. We suppose Judge Carnes' rulings are supported by reasons which to him are sufficient. That is his matter. He will have to answer to the people of Kentucky for his course. But what of his reputation? Can he afford to have said of him the things that are being said? Can he return to his home and family unscathed? These questions are up to him.

What of the State Administration? What of Governor Beckham? It has been said that he is friendly to Hargis. This is no offense, but other things have been charged. He has never denied these charges to our knowledge. Will the people of Kentucky seat him in the Senate of the United States with these charges unanswered? He cannot hide behind local option longer. He owes the people an explanation. Will he make it?

Let peace reign. Let Hargis have a fair trial. If innocent he should be acquitted. If guilty God help him.

NARROWS.

Jan. 30.—Rev. P. E. Herndon closed a successful series of meetings Monday night at the Baptist church. A notable incident of the meeting was the baptism by immersion of a number of candidates during a fierce winter gale Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Sam Bennett is seriously ill of cancer. Prof. Clarence Bennett, of Lexington, and Rev. Reginald Bennett, of Elkhorn, were called home Saturday on account of their mother's illness.

Asberry Harrison, who is suffering with tubercular trouble, is very low. Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of Whitesville, was called to administer the sacrament of Extreme Unction to the sick man Friday night.

A. R. Renfrow is at the bedside of his mother who is very sick at her home near Sunnydale.

Dr. A. B. Riley reports the birth of a 14½ pound boy to the wife of H. H. Westerfield recently.

Prof. J. C. Lawrence began a spring school here Monday morning with fifty-two pupils. Mr. Lawrence taught the fall term of school here and his work was so complete and satisfactory that his spring school is being liberally patronized.

Miss Rosa Shreve returned Tuesday from a visit with her sister, Miss Ambia Shreve, at Rosine.

Misses Edith and Effie Duke, daughters of Mr. Thomas Duke, of Sunnydale, are attending school here.

Mr. Garlie Allen, of Select, is visiting relatives at New Baynes this week.

Orville Smith visited his sister, Mrs. T. J. Litsey, at Horse Branch, the first of the week.

James Carter is spending a few days with friends at Beaver Dam and Hartford.

Mrs. Ollie Thompson, of Louisville, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Carter, several days last week.

At a recent meeting of Narrows local A. S. of E. Mr. E. G. Kirby was elected President, and Mr. C. C. Carter was elected Secretary. Mr. Kirby is a stickler for discipline and conducts the lodge work with order and decorum. Mr. Carter makes an ideal Secretary. Book in hand he goes after the dues and persists until the delinquent pays up to get rid of him. Perhaps if other Secretaries patterned after the Narrows Secretary, the paid up membership would be larger. Out of a membership of more than a hundred in the Narrows local, only one member "dumped" his tobacco and there were some extenuating circumstances in his case.

Among the bleak and barren hills near Magan there lives a young man of the humblest birth and fortune who gives promise of a marked career. His honest but humble ancestors are not known to have felt a taste for the liberal arts but he, if thrown with proper influences, would doubtless take an honored place in the ranks of American Sculptors. The young man is Jasle Merritt, a youth scarcely out of his teens, who has never seen a sculptor at his marble, and whose model is wood and whose chisel is his pocket knife. Some of Mr. Merritt's works in wood may be seen in a business house at Fordsville, and are marvels of taste and skill. A virgin at prayer with her hands clasped above her head, and a gladiator guarding his vitals with his left arm while his muscular right is drawn for striking are wonders of self taught art, but his bust of Abraham Lincoln represents his most perfect labor. One viewing this statue in wood of the martyr President is impressed with the marvelous perfection of the sculptor's skill in carving in wood with a jack knife by this country boy.

COUPLE WED EACH OTHER FIVE TIMES.

They Started in Double Harness Twenty Years ago and Have Been Divorced Four Times.

Lander, Wyo. Jan. 31.—Robert J. Burkett and Hannah M. Burkett, who are to live on a ranch north of here, have just been married for the fifth time, having been divorced four times since they first became husband and wife, twenty odd years ago.

Within six months after their first marriage, in Montana, Mrs. Burkett applied for and obtained a divorce from her husband on the ground of cruelty. Within year they remarried, quarreled soon after the second marriage, and Mrs. Burkett left her husband who obtained a divorce on the ground of desertion. The next divorce was obtained by the wife on the ground of desertion and non-support. The last divorce was obtained by the husband on the ground of desertion. The couple have lived in a number of the western States since their first marriage, and no two divorces were obtained in the same State.

COL. LAFE GREEN DIES SUDDENLY.

Conversing With Family in Library When Final Summons Came.

Col. Layfayette Green, one of the most widely known men in Kentucky, died at noon Monday at his home at Falls of Rough, in Breckinridge county. His death was quite sudden, and is supposed to have resulted from heart disease. He was sitting in the library conversing with other members of the family and was, apparently, in the best of health and spirits when he sustained the fatal attack.

Col. Green was known all over the State as Lafe Green. No man enjoyed a wider acquaintance than he throughout this section of the State, as well as in Louisville, Frankfort and Lexington.

Although he had not been in politics for more than forty years he was known to the politicians of the State. He never allowed a session of the Legislature to pass without making a trip to Frankfort. In early life he represented his Senatorial District in the Legislature.

He owned several thousand acres of land at Falls of Rough, and a number of years ago built one of the finest mansions in the State. All of the material used in the building was obtained on the farm. A stone quarry was opened and a brick kiln made for this purpose. All of the lumber was sawed at Col. Green's mill.

Revival Closes.

The protracted meeting which has been in progress at the Methodist church for more than two weeks, closed Wednesday night. About 12 persons were converted. While this number is not so large as the ministers and Christian people would like to have seen, yet the net results of the meeting for good in the town can hardly be estimated. Many Christians have been revived, and many persons, who perhaps never gave the subject much thought, are concerned about salvation.

The ministers all labored faithfully and earnestly. They gave the people of this community a series of sermons which have never been excelled. Rev. Lyons, who led the singing, has gained a firm hold upon the affections of our people, and will be followed in his work by many a "God speed" and devout prayer. At the close of the last service while the choir sang that beautiful and impressive hymn, "Till we meet again," nearly every man, woman and child in the large audience took Bro. Lyons' hand and bade him farewell.

Death of Mrs. Felix.

Mrs. Mary Blackwell Felix died at her home, near Olafon, Wednesday, January 23d, after a lingering illness. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Thomas Kelley, Thursday afternoon at the residence, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Sullenger burying grounds, in the presence of a large circle of friends and relatives. Mrs. Felix was the daughter of Capt. William and Malinda Duke, and was born April 9, 1836. She was married December 9, 1863, to Mr. James T. Felix. She is survived by her husband, a son, Dr. C. W. Felix, Olafon, and a step-son, Mr. F. L. Felix, editor of the Hartford Herald. Mrs. Felix was a woman of splendid qualities and leaves a beautiful memory to her many friends, who mourn her loss.

WHITE DEER DIS-COVERED IN TEXAS

Man Produces Two Skins to Substantiate His Story.

Animals Have Range in Tornillo Valley, Where White Men Seldom Go.

A special dispatch from Terlingua, Texas, to the St. Louis Globe Democrat says: Sam Dossett, the Superintendent of the Fossatt ranch near here, is of the opinion that the white deer which was killed recently near Eagle Pass belonged to a herd of white deer which he claims are to be found along the valley of the Rio Grande and its tributary streams below Terlingua. Mr. Dossett's statement is not based upon speculation. He says that he saw a large number of these white deer while hunting on Tornillo creek, thirty miles east of Terlingua, only a few days ago. He killed two of the animals and brought their skins home.

It is his belief that they are an entirely different species from the common black-tail deer which roam over the ranches in other portions of the State. The locality where these white deer is found is far from human habitation and has been visited only on rare occasions by Americans. Occasionally a Mexican cowboy may go up or down the little narrow valleys in search of strayed cattle. The deer keep in the canyons mostly and seem to thrive better upon the rough food that grows along the steep walls of the canyons and sides of the hills. In this respect they seem to be related to the mountain goat.

"There is no doubt about the existence of these white deer," Mr. Dossett said. "I saw the animals. I was down on Tornillo creek hunting black-tail deer, accompanied by my Mexican cook, when I came across the beautiful animals. The first morning I was out I saw four or five of the white deer running through the chaparral close to me. I took a shot at only one of them, bringing it down. In appearance it resembled the black-tail, except it is smaller and is white. I did not have the heart to ruthlessly slaughter the animals—they were so beautiful. I was out after the black-tail, but did not see a one. The white deer have evidently run them off of their range. These white deer evidently keep pretty close to their native range or we would have seen some of them in the Terlingua district before this. Occasionally one or two of them may stray off, and this accounts for the reports which we hear from time to time of a white deer being killed."

Those white deer are evidently a distinct species, and are not freaks of nature, as is generally supposed. That they are of pure strain of blood, and have not been crossed with the black-tail deer, is shown by the fact that all that I saw were pure white, with not a semblance of natural discoloring of their hair. The animals were comparatively tame, as they had probably never seen a human being until my Mexican and I appeared among them.

"My story of these white deer does not seem to be credited among the people I have told it to, even some of my close friends think it is merely a 'hunting story,' but I have the skins of two of the animals to prove what I say. I am going back to Tornillo creek one of these days with a party of those 'doubting Thomases' and show them the animals at close range. The canyon of Tornillo creek is precipitous, and runs down close to where it empties into the Rio Grande. The distance between the walls is several hundred yards wide, and in this little valley is fine grass and shrubbery at all seasons of the year. It is big enough range to afford ample pasture for probably 300 or 400 deer. It would be difficult for one of the animals to get out of the canyon, and this may account for the fact that they have not spread over the adjoining country. It is a natural game preserve."

It has just been discovered that the

Do You Open Your Mouth
Like a young bird andgulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes Broadsheet and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verified under seal. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftentimes with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, spasms, cramps of St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

upheaval of April 18 did funny things to the wells in the court yard in the rear of the San Francisco mint. For years prior to April 18 these had been ordinary, well-behaved wells, yielding water plentifully when a steam pump was employed. But now they are spouting artesian wells, from which a stream of water flows when no pumping is done. This was discovered yesterday when the pump was taken out for repairs, the court yard being flooded in a very short time.

The wells were bored many years ago and are about 175 feet in depth. There was apparently a subterranean connection between them, for the pumping of water from one lowered the water in the other. Normally the water was within thirty feet of the surface, and that was the condition when the pump was taken out last March. Yesterday, for the first time since March, the pumps were again removed, when it was discovered that the water flowed freely.

FAMOUS CASE OF CALEB POWERS

Will Likely be continued When Called at Georgetown February 5.

As the February term of the Scott county court draws near, at which the case of the Commonwealth against Caleb Powers is docketed to come up there is much general interest as to what final provision will be made for its hearing.

Thus far no subpoenas have been issued in the case and no preparation is being made.

The general belief is that there will be no urgent request on the part of either side for the hearing of the case at the February term.

At the previous trials it has taken at least three weeks in which to enact preparation for the trial, and in addition three weeks for its hearing.

Powers when interviewed at the jail said there was nothing new to be told of the case just now. He looks well, despite a slight pallor and so far as his health is concerned it is little the worse for his seven years' imprisonment.

Many sufferers from nasal catarrh say they get splendid results by using an atomizer. For their benefit we prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Except that it is liquid it is in all respects like the healing, helpful, pain-alleviating Cream Balm that the public has been familiar with for years. No cocaine nor other dangerous drugs in it. The soothing spray relieves at once and cures certain. All druggists, 75c., including spraying tube or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

BOARD ANNOUNCES MINIMUM PRICES

That Farmers Should Get For Their Products.

Adopted at National Convention and Ratified by State, County and Local Unions.

The following minimum prices are those agreed upon by the American Society of Equity at its annual meeting for the present crops, says Up-to-date Farming. They are decided upon by the board representing every line of agricultural production. The members of the board are aided by an exhaustive system of crop reports, undocored, reliable and made in the interest of the farmers and not of the speculators. They compare production and consumption and thereby determine, in accordance with the law of supply and demand, what the proper minimum price is for the various products. They are adopted by the national convention and ratified by the state, county and local unions of the society. These are the prices:

Per bushel—Wheat, No 1, Northern spring, Minneapolis, $1; wheat, No. 2, red winter, Chicago, $1; Corn, No. 2, after January 1 to April 1, Chicago, 50 cents; Corn, No. 2, after April 1, Chicago, 55 cents; Oats, No. 2, white, Chicago, 40 cents; Barley, No. 2, or good malting, Chicago, 55 cents; Rye, No. 2, Chicago, 75 cents; Buckwheat, in country, 70 cents; Potatoes, Irish, Chicago, 65 cents; Potatoes, sweet, in principal markets, 75 cents; Beans, white, hand picked, Detroit, $1.50; Beans, red, hand picked, Detroit, $2.

Per ton—Hay, No. 1, timothy, Chicago, $14; broom corn, to farmers, 75 cents to $1. Per pound—Cotton middlings, New York, 12 cents; medium unwashed wool in country, 30 cents. Per cwt.—Alive at Chicago—sheep, $5.50 to $7.50, lambs, $6.50 to $6.50; hogs, $6 to $6.50; cattle, $6 to $6.50. Below these prices, the society urges, farmers should not sell. Each is based on a central market and the farm price will be enough less to equal freight and a fair commission to the handlers. Farmers should control their marketing so as to keep the market hungry and the demands seeking the supply, when they can make their own prices. They should see to it that their crops go off the farms throughout the period of a year instead of in a few months.

Farmers can complete these prices by refusing to sell for less, and those farmers who hold for these prices are very certain to get them, for the world needs all of the crops and not only a part of them, and will pay the farmers' price, if he steadfastly refuses to accept the prices made by speculators on boards of trade and exchanges.

Birds the Farmers' Friends.
Prof. Cood, of the national agricultural department, declares that of the 300 different kinds of birds, but three are the farmers' foes—the English sparrow leading. He held that while the robin is looked upon as a destroyer of fruit, his diet is but one pound of fruit to nine pounds of insects.

Nothing will relieve the indigestion that is not a thorough digestant. KODOL digests what you eat and allows the stomach to rest—rejuvenate—grow strong again. KODOL is a solution of digestive acids and as nearly as possible approximates the digestive juices that are found in the stomach. KODOL takes the work of digestion off the digestive organs, and while performing this work itself does greatly assist the stomach to a thorough rest. In addition, the ingredients of KODOL are such as to make it a corrective of the highest efficiency and by its action the stomach is restored to its normal activity and power. KODOL is manufactured in strict conformity with the National Pure Food and Drug Law. For sale by all druggists.

Weighing the Pig.

A farmer wanted to weigh a pig, but had no scales. Knowing that his own weight was 160 pounds and that of his wife 139 pounds, he placed a board over the top of the fence like seesaw so that a perfect balance was made, he on one end, she on the other. Then they changed places on the board, the wife taking the pig on her lap, which again perfectly balanced the board. How much did the pig weigh?

A liquid cold relief with a laxative principle which drives out the cold through a copious action of the bowels, and a healing principle which lingers in the throat and stops the cough—that is Kennedy's Laxative Cough syrup. Safe and sure in its action—pleasant to take and conforms to National Pure Food and Drug Law. Contains no opiates. Sold by all druggists.

ARGUES FOR THE HOME PLAN.

Strong Appeal in Favor of Home Warehouses and Home Finance.

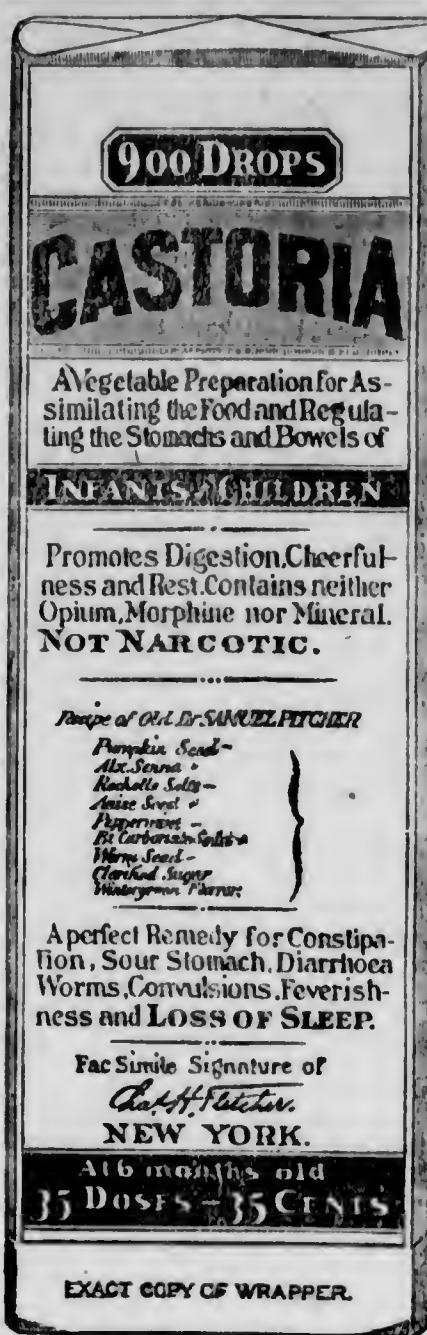

Editor's Hartford Republican: I beg leave to enter a few objections to the present plan of handling equity tobacco.

First, we have entrusted our business to the hands of those who have already grown rich at our expense. To acknowledge that we cannot handle, finance and sell our own tobacco is to acknowledge that we have not the power to compel the price. Who is so cowardly as to make such a confession? We can compel the price but not without the necessary appliances. What is necessary to control prices? We must own our own warehouses, store and sell, also distribute the proceeds of our own crops, thereby reducing the expenses to a minimum. Some contend that we should not enter the warehouse business. Why? Does not the end presuppose the means? We have a right to store, handle and sell our tobacco. Are we competent? Yes, of course.

It is hardly necessary to mention the expenses under the present plan of handling, for most all who have pooled know too well about the expenses. Can we save by keeping our tobacco at home? We will see what the expenses are. First, we pay $1.50 per hogshead freight; second, $1.50 per hogshead for sampling; third, $2.50 per hogshead outgate fees; fourth, 5¢ drayage; fifth, one per cent. commission for selling, which amounts to about $1 per hogshead; sixth, we give a sample worth $1 per hogshead; seventh, storage at 25¢ per month, or $3 per year, then if held one year a hogshead will cost $10.50, outside of interest and loss in weight in redrying. How can we control these expenses? Any reasonable man must admit that we can cut these expenses at least one half by storing at home in our own warehouses. Can we arrange or necessary advances without going to warehouse companies?

No one conversant with the tobacco situation would doubt for a moment our ability to raise money for advances, because it is being done every where but in the Green River District, and we are financing 5,000,000 pounds, and could finance that much more or the entire district. Some of our prominent equity men said that they favored a home warehouse if it could be financed. Now, what excuse will they find next? I guess they will want to wait till next year, but it is easier to finance than to hatch up excuses for not doing it.

There is not a thing between the earth and skies to prevent us from having a warehouse, if we want it. We invite all farmers to join us in our fight for home rule and then the success of equity will be a reality and not a dream. Will our tobacco sell more readily at home? Yes, a thousand times yes.

The Louisville Warehouse Company is supposed to lend money for the interest, and to store tobacco for the storage. Then, the longer they hold our tobacco the more money they get out of it. Further, do they not buy tobacco as well as store it? Then, is it not reasonable to suppose that they would sell their tobacco and hold ours for interest and storage?

I should be glad to hear from one who is opposed to the home plan. If I am wrong I would like to get right. I think it is time for our plans to assume permanent form, hence I hope all farmers will very earnestly consider this proposition.

I am yours for a warehouse.

"Everybody Should Know"
Says C. G. Hays, a prominent business man of Bluff, Mo., "that Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the quickest and surest healing salve ever applied to a sore, burn or wound, or to a case of piles. I've used it and know what I'm talking about." Sold by all druggists, 25¢.

ALL GOOD THINGS

must win upon their merits. The International Dictionary has won a greater distinction upon its merits and is in more general use than any other work of its kind in the English language.

A. H. Sayce, LL.D., D.D., of Oxford University, England, has recently said of it: "It is indeed a marvelous work; it is difficult to conceive of a dictionary more exhaustive and complete. Everything is in it, and only what one might expect to find in such a work, but also a few things which one would never have thought of looking for." A supplement to the new edition has been brought up to date. I have been looking through the latter with a feeling of admiration at its completeness, and the amount of labor that has been put into it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce S. A. ANDERSON, of West Hartford Precinct, a candidate for Representative in the General Assembly from the 26th district, subject to the action of the Republican party.

We are authorized to announce W. W. PARK, of the Beda Precinct, a candidate for Representative in the General Assembly from the 26th district, subject to the action of the Republican party.

Examine the label on your paper. If it is not correct notify us.

At this time Taft seems to be far in the lead as a Republican Presidential possibility.

There is a shortage in the peanut crop, but the market is glutted with peanut politicians.

Just as the floods are subsiding, following the cold wave, we must wade through the thaw trial.

The Courier-Journal is again threatening to nominate a Republican candidate for Governor.

The Government clerk no doubt would submit to a raise in salary also, without insisting on a record vote.

At the rate the indictments are piling up against the Standard Oil Co., it will soon be monopolizing all the time of the Courts.

Gov. SWETTENHAM, of Kingston, lost his head, when he wrote that letter to Admiral Davis, and now he has lost his official head.

Let us hope that Louisville will learn who was elected at the last municipal election, before it is time to hold the next one.

SENATOR TILLMAN made a blunder in assuming that "the world is a stage," and the Senate a minstrel show, with himself a "burnt cork artist."

On another page will be found an interesting article on the Home Warehouse question. This is going to be a live issue among equity people in the near future.

The President has sent in a good many messages, during the session of Congress, but none of them have been referred to the committee on disposition of useless papers.

We are told that, next year, a determined effort is to be made to give husbands and wives equal rights. What rights are the wives to give up, in order to equalize matters.

AND now Congress proposes to raise the rate of postage on newspapers, presumably to provide revenues with which to pay the increase in salaries, which the members voted themselves.

A LONDON paper is distressed, because it has discovered that the United States is growing in riches ten times as fast as England. It should take courage in the thought that the American spends his money ten times as fast as the Englishman.

EVERY line of business in Hartford has suffered more or less on account of the continuous floods, but when we read of the destruction and suffering along the Ohio and other streams, we should be exceedingly thankful that our troubles are so few.

It is announced that Caleb Powers' case will be called at Georgetown next week, and that there is some question about who will preside as special Judge. What is the matter with special Judge Carnes sitting in this case? He is not now engaged in Breathitt.

With a continued increase in the price of paper, by the trusts, a raise in postage, and shutting off of railroad transportation in return for advertising, the newspapers seem to be getting squeezed on all sides. Wonder if the fact that they have been standing almost as a unit with the people in their fight against monopoly has anything to do with it?

WHEN Senator Barton, of Kan., a Republican, got mixed up in a case of graft, though only technically guilty, he was prosecuted by a Republican District Attorney, tried by a Republican Judge and sent to the penitentiary. When Senator Bailey, of Texas, a Democrat, is caught grafting from the great octopus, the Standard Oil Co., he is re-elected by the Texas Legislature. Talk is cheap.

THE late high waters have almost destroyed the levee North of Hartford, on the Owensboro road, and it will be necessary for the county to spend a great deal of money on this very important road during the year. The only sensible, business proposition is to build above high water and pile this road, for at least two miles. Then it can and should be extended on toward Pleasant Ridge, as fast as possible.

If it is true that the Cumberland Telephone Company is trying to obtain control of the Rough River or Home Company, some steps should be taken by our people to prevent it. The Cumberland service here is bad at present, because that Company refuses to furnish decent boxes to its subscribers. Once let them get a monopoly and bad service will become rotten. If the Home 'phones go over to the Cumberland our people should at once organize a new and independent company. It would get all the subscribers.

MR. BRYAN and Senator Beveridge have arranged to furnish a series of magazine articles upon certain subjects, about which they disagree. Of course it is done merely to enlighten the public, but it would be interesting to know just how much money each is to receive for his patriotic services. A great many prominent Democrats think it is a serious mistake on Mr. Bryan's part, as it is practically certain that he will be the nominee of his party for President next year, and they think he is liable to say something which may injure his chances at the polls.

The Louisville Herald thinks the Pension Agency at Louisville should be retained, for the benefit of Hon. Andrew T. Wood. Maj. Wood is quoted as saying, it does not make any difference with him, and he is only sorry for the clerks. It would go hard with them. Some of them have been in office for twenty years, and we doubt if they could do anything else. This all comes of the Civil Service, which is creating a life-office-holding class, entirely foreign to our form of government. These people finally come to look upon the salary as a pension, and the job as personal property.

Death of Mrs. James Collins.
Mrs. James Collins died at Memphis, Tenn., Wednesday, where she had gone to spend the winter and visit her son, John R. Collins, of the Southern Coal Company. Mrs. Collins was ill only a few days, and while she had a complication of troubles, the immediate cause of death was bronchial pneumonia.

"Aunt Polly," as she was usually called, was one of the oldest citizens of Hartford. Her husband, Mr. James Collins, was for a great many years identified with the business interests of the town, and was widely known for his sterling integrity and good citizenship.

The funeral of Mrs. Collins was conducted at her late residence at 11 o'clock yesterday morning by Rev. J. A. Lewis, after which the burial took place at Oakwood cemetery.

She is survived by four sons, John R. and Martin, of Memphis, Tenn., and Buck and Will Collins, of Hartford.

The funeral services at the home were attended by numerous friends and relatives. The family has the deepest sympathy of the community.

THE PEOPLE'S CONGRESSIONAL LOBBY.

New Department at Washington

Will Watch Records of Members of Congress.

Washington is watching with much interest the working out of a distinctly new idea in public affairs. This is the People's Lobby, a non-partisan organization designed to foster a wider knowledge of national legislation and to indorse or oppose such bills as affect the general welfare of the people.

The basic idea is that, if the people know the facts on legislative matters, public opinion will find such wide expression that it cannot be disregarded. Channels of publicity are not lacking.

An important branch of the work of the organization is the careful compiling of the public record of every Senator and Representative. The people have a right to know from an unprejudiced source, what their legislators are doing. The influences brought to bear on members of Congress will also be examined into; this means a history of the "third house," the secret lobbyist, who are so successful in influencing legislation for the benefit of the "special interest" which employ them.

The palm seems broad enough to augur great public good if intelligently carried into effect and the personnel of the Governing Committee and of the men in charge of the bureau in Washington would seem to promise this result.

To Keep Windows From Frosting.

The haberdasher sighed, for his window, full of lovely neckties, was quite opaque with frost.

"I'd give a lot," he said, "for some method to keep my window from frosting over in cold weather."

"I'll let you have the method you want for nothing," said the patron. "Coat the inside of your window with glycerin, and it will keep as clear in winter as in summer. I'm a surveyor, and in my trade we always use glycerin on our glass instruments when it's cold."

A Costly Clock.

An astronomical wedding gift, says the Weltall, has been presented to King Alfonso of Spain by the republic of Peru. It is an artistic table clock designed by the French sculptor Carriere Belleuse and is held by the muse of astronomy. The zodiac, stars, figures, etc., are made of lapis lazuli, gold and precious crystals. The clock received the grand prix at the Paris exhibition of 1900 and cost $16,000.

PROFESSOR OSLER ON DIET.

Comparing the human body and the steam engine in a lecture at the Workingmen's college, Professor Osler said one differentiating feature was that, while the engine had only one furnace, and a large one, the human body consisted of myriads of little furnaces—that is, cells. Milk was the original food of man. It contained the four things that were necessary as food—fat, curd, sugar and salt—all dissolved in water. Dr. Weir Mitchell once showed him a robust looking patient, and he remarked, "He looks as if he had been living on the fat of the land." "No," replied Dr. Mitchell; "on the fat of the cow." That patient had a five years' milk diet, except on Sundays, when his wife insisted on rice pudding. If vegetarians would eat their vegetables and say less about it, they would do well. Many vegetarians were not as robust mentally as physically.

Alcohol was quite unnecessary. If all the beer and spirits could be dumped into the Irish channel, the English channel and the North sea for a year, people in England would be infinitely better off. "If," he continued, "on the second day you dumped all the tobacco into the sea, it would be good for you and hard on the fish."—London News.

Women as Toilers.

The last census tells us that the proportion of women employed in manufactures is increasing more rapidly than men, that they are found in 295 of the 303 separate occupations, that they are not employed as soldiers, sailors, marines, street car drivers, firemen or as apprentices to roofers, boilermakers or brass workers. For such facts we can properly look to the census, but it is beyond the province of the census to show what are the sanitary conditions of their employment, their hours of labor, what the effect of their work is upon the morals of young girls, upon the health of women, upon their homes, upon their children, upon the wage earning power of their husbands, upon family desertion, upon the birth rate and marriage rate. This investigation should be a sociological study and will naturally be made by the department of labor.—Mary E. McDowell in Independent.

An Opium Cure.

A cure for the opium habit has at last been reported from China to our department of commerce and labor. It is found in a plant which grows wild in the vicinity of Lantau, and its use is said to destroy all appetite for the drug within a week. The leaves of the plant are exposed to the sun for a day after being gathered and are then chopped fine and roasted, after which a tea is made from them, and the specific is ready for use. In Lantau alone the applicants number 2,000 daily, and it is claimed that in the few short weeks since the plant was discovered over 14,000 persons have been cured of the opium smoking habit. So great is the demand for the plant that the natives are asking $10 a picul (133 1/3 pounds).—Springfield Union.

The Most Polite Man.

The most polite man has been found in Robert Wilder of Clarksburg, W. Va. He has never been known to say a cross word to anybody, and he is respected highly by his relatives, which is saying a great deal. When Wilder was held up by a highwayman near Dugan's dam, Mr. Wilder handed over $13.25 and apologized for not having more with him. Wilder smiles when a person tramps on his corn and congratulates his wife on her discernment when she calls him names. Taken ill one day, he insisted upon telephoning the undertaker, expressing regret at the trouble he might cause him.—Philadelphia North American.

His Ideal Woman

The first thing I did on getting back from India was to spend a week with my people in the country. A good deal can happen in five years, and we naturally had plenty to talk about. But I tore myself away at last with a promise to return for August and settle myself in town in my old lodgings off St. James street.

Apart from the various business matters requiring my attention—my investments had not improved during my absence, and it was necessary to cast my eye about for other securities—London at the moment appealed to me irresistibly.

There within the four miles radius was massed the whole of what I had missed during my five years in a remote station in Burma—the life, the motion, the perpetual sense of something going on, of being in close proximity, if not in absolute contact, with the source of current modes of thought, of hearing the ceaseless hum of the wheels of civilization, the throb of actuality, of which not even the echoes had penetrated to the squat white bungalows on the banks of the Irawadi, where the monotony had not been varied by even so much as a moment's sightseeing, and one made up for saving one's intellect by overfeeding one's physical instincts.

Once in town I found myself plunged into a vortex of amusement. There were old friends to be "looked up." When "looked up," they insisted on dinner, to be followed by a theater or music hall. Some of the men I had "done the town" with five years before had got married. I had to make the acquaintance of their wives. Others who had been married had been divorced. I had to forget that they had ever been married.

One way and another I was so busy that it was not till the end of a month that I remembered that I had not seen Wetherby. He had always been "one of us" in the old days at Oxford and elsewhere, prepared for anything and everything, and I could not make out how it was that I had not already come across him.

"Oh, Wetherby," said Benson, the stockbroker, when I asked him what had happened to our old friend, "we never see Wetherby now. He is supposed to be in love. For myself, I believe he was just going to marry a girl, and she died, with the result that he has been brooding over her death ever since."

"Anyway, no one ever seems to see him anywhere, though he's still got the same old rooms in the temple. Go and look him up by all means, but I don't suppose you'll be able to see him, or, if you do, to get anything out of him. As I say, he never seems to go out anywhere, though, as you know he used to be such a great ladies' man."

"With strong views as to the ideal woman," I put in, remembering various conversations we had had on the subject.

"Yes," assented Benson. "He was always great on the woman question, talking about 'the perfect type' and all that sort of bosh. He always was a bit of a dreamer."

"Perhaps," I said maliciously, "that may account for his never being seen now. He may have found this type and be keeping her to himself."

"Perhaps," said Benson. "However, come and see him. You and he seem to be such terrible pals you'll be able to get more out of him than any other. Hours have been wasted."

"Well, I'll go and see him," I said. I sat down in the temple that evening. At last I had cracked the door of his chamber. I caught myself to open it. It struck me that he looked half confused, half annoyed, as if I had surprised him at a moment when he was occupied with other matters and resisted intrusion. I wondered whether, after all, the "perfect type" theory was right.

I put my suspicion aside, however, when, recognizing me at last in the semiobscenity of the staircase, he seized my hand and shook it warmly. "My dear fellow," he said, "I am delighted to see you. When did you get back?" He overwhelmed me with questions as I followed inside and pulled a chair up to the open window facing his own. For an hour we sat talking over old times and smoking. The conversation, reminiscent, as for the most part it was, enabled me to see that in some respects he was changed from the man I had seen five years before. He spoke more deliberately—slower. As Benson had remarked, he had always had a tendency to dream. The tendency seemed accentuated. At times he was silent for a minute together, puffing meditatively at his pipe. At last I could not help questioning him even at the risk of giving offense. "Benson says," I remarked, "that you are quite different from what you used to be. You never go out anywhere. What is it? You remember our talking about the 'perfect type.' You have not found her? You are not in love?"

He was silent a moment, puffing out huge clouds of smoke. Then "Look here, old fellow," he said. "I don't know why I should not tell you. These other fellows could not understand that if I did tell them."

"I am afraid you are crediting me with more intelligence than I possess," I said. "If what you propose to tell me would pass Benson's understanding I am afraid it would also pass mine."

"You underrate yourself. Besides, after all, it is quite simple, only Benson is such a material person. The Stock Exchange has made him worse. Anyway, I am going to tell you."

"Yes?" I said invitingly.

"You remember," he said, settling himself back in his chair, "I had always my own views about women."

"You expected a great deal," I said.

"Well," he went on, not heeding the interruption, "you know I can well afford to marry. If I had found the woman I wanted, I should have married long ago. I could not find her, much as I sought it. The clever woman had no beauty, the beautiful no brains, or, where the combination did exist, the woman was already married or had some equally prohibitive defect."

"You sought for what did not exist," I said. "There is no ideal woman, as their is no ideal man."

"Not in your sense," he said. "Certainly not in the sense of a man like Benson, if he can conceive the possibility of an ideal woman at all, or an ideal anything."

"And in yours?" I said.

He rose from his chair and, going to a long drawer in a cabinet, took out from it an armful of photographs—there must, I should think, have been some fifty there in all. "Just look through these," he said.

I did so, wondering. Every type of female face and female beauty was there represented, from the English and American woman to the French and Austrian, from the creole to the Caucasian, from the daughter of the people to the daughter of the peer. Some of the faces might well have been those of saints; others were indubitably those of sinners. Barnards jostled against Sisters of Mercy. Actresses followed on the princesses of the blood royal. Some of the faces were too utilitarian clever to approach physical beauty. Others, again, proclaimed the triumph of body over soul.

"Well?" I said at length, still more astonished.

He spread out the photos on the table before him, eying them lovingly, fondling them as a man fondles the woman who is to be his wife. "There," he said, pointing to the rows of faces before him, "you have a perfect type. I tried to find it existing in one woman. You were right. It was impossible, but I have got it there."

"Yes," I said, smiling at his intensity, "but these are only mere photographs. The essence of them constitutes the perfect type of womanhood, no doubt, but these things are not alive. They are mere counterfeit presentations. You are not a nineteenth century Pygmalion. You cannot make mere photographs live."

"Perhaps not," he said. "At least, who can tell? I know that when I gaze long on these faces I conjure up from their various characteristics the perfect type of woman and can never care for any one else—I mean any woman. This face I have erected represents to me the supreme essence of feminine loveliness, the one woman for whom a man should be glad to die, for whom I would die, did she require me, this very minute. People tell you I never go out anywhere. How can I when this splendid beauty smiles before me at home? I tell you I never lived till I knew her, and now I cannot live without her. To me she is the one woman in this world or the next. Indeed not the one woman, but woman herself."

I left Wetherby's chambers half an hour later wondering if my old friend was going mad. As I turned to close the door behind me I saw him suddenly bend down over the table and, sweeping the photographs together into his arms, cover them with a rain of passionate kisses.

LEFT BEHIND.

FAMOUS BALANCERS.

Some of the Wonderful Feats Performed by Hindoo Girls.

The dexterity of the Hindoos in tumbling and rope dancing and legerdeain is so much superior to that of Europeans and Japanese that the statements of travelers on the subject were much doubted until they were brought to exhibit their singular feats in this country.

Nothing is more common in India than to see young girls walking on their heads, with their heels in the air, turning round like a wheel or walking on the hands and feet with the body bent backward.

Another girl will bend backward, plunge her head into a hole about eighteen inches deep, full of water and dirt, and bring up between her lips a ring that is buried in the mud. Two women may frequently be seen dancing together in a rope stretched over trestles, the one playing on the vina, or Hindoo guitar, and the other holding two vessels brimful of water and capering about without spilling a drop.

A plank is sometimes fixed to the top of a pole twenty-five feet high, which is set upright. A man then climbs up it, springs backward and seats himself upon the plank. Another mountebank balances himself by the middle of the body on a bamboo pole fifteen or eighteen feet high.

He first sets it upright and then climbs up it with his legs and arms, as if it was a firmly rooted tree. On reaching the top he clings to it with his feet and hands, after fixing the center of the pole in the middle of his sash, and dances, moving about in all directions to the sound of music, without the pole ever losing its equilibrium. He then descends, takes a boy on his shoulders, climbs up the pole again and stands on the top on one leg.

Sometimes a boy lies across the extremity of the bamboo and holds himself quite stiff for a considerable time.

A man lifts up the pole and the boy in that state and moves with them about in all directions without losing the balance. A still more extraordinary feat is performed by the Hindoo women. One of them will sometimes balance herself in a horizontal position, with her arms extended like a person swimming, on the top of a bamboo pole ninety feet high, fixed in the ground.

In a short time she seems to have lost her balance and falls, to the no small terror of the spectators, but this is only one of her extraordinary movements. She catches by one foot in a rope fastened to bar which crosses the middle of the pole and remains suspended with her head downward.

A Field For Science.

An Iowa man tells with glee how an eminent eastern scientist was disappointed while lecturing in an interior town of the Hawkeye State. The scientific man at the conclusion of a lecture which he had been delivering announced that he should be glad to answer any question in order to elucidate such points as might need clearing up. In the audience was an inveterate joker—a tall, gaunt man with an anxious, careworn look. The joker arose and in solemn tones announced that he had a question. The lecturer bowed. "I shall be only too happy to reply to it, sir," said he. The tall man cleared his throat and then in a loud voice said, "I would take it as a considerable favor if you would tell me whether science has produced any remedy for warts."

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Orange Baskets and How to Make Them—Various Helpful Hints.

To make orange baskets stand the oranges blossom end uppermost and cut out from each upper half two right angled pieces in such a way as to leave the lower half intact and a strip of skin over the top to form a handle. Remove all pulp and juice and with a sharp knife scallop out the top of the rind.

Press and strain the juice, and for each pint take a half package of gelatin and half cup of cold water. When soaked add a half pint of boiling water and, when dissolved, the juice of one lemon, one cupful of sugar and the orange juice.

Strain and when cold and firm cut into cubes and heap these in the orange baskets. For an extra touch divide the strained jelly, coloring half pale pink. Chill separately and mix the two colors in the baskets.

Ironing Linen.

Iron the linen before it is dry, and iron it then until it is perfectly dry. This insures perfect work.

Have the iron hot. A lukewarm iron will not do. Fold the cloth lengthwise, if at all, for the pressing. Press hard and iron smoothly until the linen is dry. Unless it is perfectly dry it will not have the luster and brilliancy that all well ironed linen has. Fold the cloth lengthwise until it is narrow enough to suit the taste, and then crosswise folding is allowable. Avoid starch in linen as you would upon silk. It is entirely out of place.

Cuts and Burns.

Apply flour or rice flour to a cut that will not stop bleeding. Either will be found effective. A burn will be relieved if either soft soap or common baking soda be applied at once. As much baking soda as will cover a ten cent piece taken in a quarter of a glass of hot water will relieve indigestion. For a scald dry flour. The heat from the burn will moisten the flour, and if it is left on it will heal without a scar.

Washing Doughnuts.

When frying doughnuts have a kettle of boiling water near the doughnut kettle, and as you take out each one on your fork plunge it into the boiling water—which must be boiling all the time—as quickly as possible. Let this water stand until cold, and you will be surprised at the amount of grease that will rise on top. Doughnuts done in this way will never be indigestible.

For the Scalp.

A good scalp cleanser, to be rubbed occasionally on the head, is made from one ounce of lanolin, half a dram of carbolic acid, four ounces of witch hazel and the same amount of almond oil. Melt the lanolin and almond oil together and then, while it is still warm, pour it into the witch hazel, adding the carbolic acid when the mixture is nearly cool.

To Wash Silk Handkerchiefs.

A silk handkerchief should never be boiled or have soap rubbed directly upon it if you wish to keep it white. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and hot water, wash the handkerchief in this and rinse in cold water to remove all suds. Wring and dry quickly in the sun or by the fire, ironing while still damp, but not wet.

Parsnip Stew.

Cut three slices of salt pork into small dice and fry crisp; add four parsnips scraped clean and cut in quarters lengthwise or into thick slices and an equal quantity of sliced potatoes. Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Season with salt and a little white pepper and serve very hot for luncheon.

Cleaning With Gasoline.

Tailors clean suits without rippling them by placing them on ironing boards with the skirt thrown over the board as for ironing. A bowl of gasoline is used and a hair-brush. Brush downward, following the straight of the goods, dipping the brush often. Work quickly to dampen, but not wet the material.

Face Powder.

The following is said to be an excellent powder for the face: Four ounces of rice powder, four ounces of talcum powder, one ounce of zinc oxide, one-half ounce of carbonate of magnesia and two grains of carmine. You can reduce or increase the amount of carmine according to the tint desired.

For the Shoes.

Milk, if applied once a week with a soft cloth to boots and shoes, preserves them wonderfully and makes them wear longer than if treated only in the ordinary way.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

How "Red" Wright Got Square on the Coffeepot.

Red Wright was a man of quick and furious temper, while Jim Donovan was as calm and unemotional as his partner was violent.

The two prospectors were cooking breakfast in their mountain camp one morning when the coffeepot happened to be Red's particular charge. The bacon, under Donovan's supervision, was almost done so Red set the coffeepot on the fire for a final boil. One of the sticks burned in two, and the pot upset. Red flew into a rage, and, jumping for the coffeepot, he kicked it from one end of the camp to the other and back again. Donovan watched him with calm interest, and when Red's fury had expended itself Donovan pulled his sixshooter and filled the coffeepot full of holes.

"By gracious, man!" cried Red, wringing his hands. "What did you do that for? We can't make no more coffee!"

"Do you think I'm goin' to stand here and see a son-of-a-gun of a coffeepot get the best of a friend of mine?" demanded Donovan as he returned to his bacon.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Cutting Up.

"Archibald is so delightfully eccentric," confessed the pretty girl, blushing deeply. "Why, after he had been calling for some time he used to cut a little notch in the old sofa every time he kissed me. Then at the end of each month I used to count them."

"And you count them now?" asked her chum.

"Oh, dear, no! There—there isn't any sofa."—Chicago News.

All In Vain.

The foreign nobleman puffed his cigarette dejectedly and refused to be consoled.

"And to think," he sighed, "I proposed to her on my knees every night for two weeks!"

"And did you bag the beautiful heiress at last?" asked the interviewer.

"No. All I bagged was my trousers."—Detroit Tribune.

Without Cost to Him.

"I'm introducing an automatic machine," said the caller, "that will pay for itself in a year."

"If it will pay for itself in a year?"

"No; automatically pay for itself in a year."—Catholic Standard and Times.
